WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 22, 1883. TEMPERANCE TRUTHS. ms Before Algeroba Lodge, I.O. G. T.

On the evening of the 13th inst., Algeroba Lodge, I. O. G. T. celebrated their first samiersary, at the Y. M. C. A. hall in this city. n that occasion the following address was delivered by Mrs. Hugh Hastie and the comments made, having been most favorable the address is here reproduced for the benefit of our readers. The speaker said : LADING AND GENTLEMEN: —As our worthy hairmen has just informed you, we meet this vecting in this social remion to celebrate he first abniversary of this Temperance organization. Doubtless the occasion brings organization. Doubtless the occasion brings forth many pleasant recollections, and let us hope that this may be the first of a long series of such happy birth-days in the history of this Temperance Lodge.

While this event brings before us a great poor that its being wrought in our midst, it also brings us face to face with a great errit, one that threatens to move like a cloud, overshadowing the land or, like the will serpent, creeping with stealthy pace, finding its home in every licensed har-room, fasting thone on its foul mission, prowling through the land, its fangs dripping with the blood of its victure.

This drink traffic is increasing in power, multiplying its attractions, and extending its assures of infamacy, until the unsightly structhaunts of infanacy, until the manghily struct, ures threaten to appear at every street-corner and their noisy revels to be the bane of every street. It is defying jubble opinion, entreuching itself behind "high sanction," it claims support, protection and even extension from those high in authority—those violating the fundamental principle of constitutional government, which declares that the "will of the people shall be the supreme law. Let us for a moment pame and look at the visible results of this drink traffic on all the dearest interests of mankink traffic ot all the dearest interests of mankink traffic its action as written upon of this drink traffic on all the dearest interests of mankind. Look at its action as written upon the broad page of society generally. In the countless hearts that have long silently held beneath their load of misery and shane, notil they can bleed in silence no longer. Millions of such sigh amongst the living to-day, while many—oh. how many have hidden their crushed and weary hearts in the grave. See it yearly beggaring unditudes of families, quenching the light of thousands of once happy homes in anguish and despair. See the ruin and delaphdation which it spreads over thrifty. and delapidation which it spreads over thrifty and presperous communities. Read it in the loss and degredation of character, in the loss less and degredation of character, in the less oven to this little Nation, of men, whose early history gave promise of all that was bright and full of hope for their country, but whose ann set even while it was yet noon, for how many, alas! have fallen from the high spherbs of honor and truth, and the esteem and love of the people. It is said to reflect, dear friends, that such has been the fatal record of many of this Nation's best and brightest men. It is saider still to think that it may continue to be sadder still to think that it may continue to be the record of many in our midst to-night. Yet how different—oh! how very different would this have been if the foul fiend of drink had is have been if the four head of drink and ver been permitted to provid and range, rough this fair garden which nature has orned so plenteously. When the passion strong drink gains possession of a man, it comes the radios passion. It respects er age nor sex, high social position nor rillians intellectual gifts, offer no certain munity from its ravages, it attacks "all orts and conditions of men," reduces them to sorts and conditions of men," reduces them to abject frembling alavery and slowly perhaps, but sorely draws them within its awful vortex. It feeds upon the very vitals of society, and possess the life blood of the most gifred, the best and fairest of earth's sons and daughters. It will be well while we are considering the amount of human misery and suffering that this indulgence in strong drink is capable of producing, to also glance at the pecuniary served of the question.

Does not this poisonous alcohol enervate and cripple all the industrial energies of the people," does it not weaken and paralyze the strong arm of husband, brother, or friend? does it not drain and waste the glorious Godgiven strength of our englayer, of four freeding crimes of this striking at the very core and feuntain-head of a nation's wealth and indergradence.

There are few nations who do not come nemesters to some kind of extravagant ex-enditure, this often of a very oppressive haracter. Under this head! may class someof the gipantic military organizations of Europe, at the present day. They oppress the poor other by the heavy taxes that are imposed upon fin in order to support them, while they connect the weaker natives by their ace the weaker nations by their aggressive and war-like character. This country may or may sed be free from retreregued expenditure; but after a careful perusal of the statistical records, I feel safe in saying that the National gapenditure in drink, exceeds the National

There seems growing disposition on the part of "the powers that be" in this community—to gram more licenses for the sale of intexicating drinks. Certainly a young country is not bound to be guided by the actions or traditions of one older than itself, but it is more bound to the first than itself, but it is a remarkable fact that while the pre-sent Licensing Act of this Kingdom-An-Act which I think every one present will agree with no in saving has done much to e with me in saying has done much to interest the sale of drink—was being advo-d by the Ministers of King Kalakaua, the sters of Queen Victoria were advocating retive legislature in this particular matter. W.E.Gladstone in a very able speech which hade upon that occasion said that—"drink residuations.

"It is neither right, nor politic for the State
o grant legal protection to any trade or sysout that tends to increase crime to waste the attornal resources, to corrupt the social bits, and to destroy the health and lives of

We have to beware of a class of politicians who while they profess great love for the peode, are ready at any moment to sacrifice that ecople's dearest interests to their ownbeelish ggrandizement,or in order to gain the support f the organized rum-seller, or who under the harm of that much mis-used word "liberty" courage the people to give rein to corre-ion and licentiousness, which in plain isn-e simply means giving them liberty to themselves without legislative let or emetment," there may be a grain of a this statement, but I think that every will concur with me in saying that the is a powerful factor in human education the law con and could to make it very easy to do right but erry hard to do wrong.

But cannot we do something to dispel this dark cloud of ignorance that amongst our people especially seems to verthang this momentum question—can we not appeal to their higher—and better nature, and just here, and before closing my remarks, I should like to ask the members of the various characters.

before closing my remarks. I should like to sake the members of the various churches, temperance and other social reforms who may be present—what are you doing to dispel this ignorance amongst the people generally; what are you doing to cultivate an intelligent perception of the physiological and other aspects of the question? Where is your temperance literature in native or English that should be sent through the length and breadth of the land? What me do you make of the awayappras?

Many causes may combine to binder the progress of this Reform, but as to its ultimate success no right thinking man or woman can have any doubt—just for a moment compare its feeble tottering footsteps of fifty years ago, with its strong and vigorous march to-day Look at it from what ever stand point you will, it is in perfect harmony with the spirit of the age, hay, it is the spirit of the age for are not its watchwords "Progress and Reform." Its champions are no fanatics, no vain sentimentalists, but men and women terribly in earnest.

Broken hearts, ruined homes, and watterlives; fallen roof-trees and the cold ashes of once genial fires urge them on. No fear that they will faller, until you can erase from the human memory these fearful recollections. Until you can make the parents forget the ruin and degradation of their children. Until you can make the children forget the vices and folies of their parents. Until you can tear from the memory the eaths of the drunken blasphener, the blows and threats of drunken violence. No men-no combination of mon can stop the onward march of this grand reform. It may be ridiculed, scoffed at and mocked at; but it advances and the strong tide sets ever orward. The surface may be blown hither and shither by the breath of scorm and ridicule, but the undercurrent everyes neither to the right or to the left; but holds broadly and deeply on its way, pressing or, with a steady resistless force.

The bribed eloquence and selfish interests of those whose gain, is human blood and agony; the double dealing and delays of crafty politherians can not stay its triumphant progress, for it is sanctioned and upheld by God himself.

NAHUKA-LIILII AND LUUKIA VS. HIKAALANI HORKON AND E. C. HORRON EER HUN-DAND, KAMEENUI (W) AND KAALAKTA HER HUSBAND, Opinion of the Chief Justice.

Opinion of the Chief Justice.

This is an action of Ejectment for the possession of all that tract of land situate in Kalia, Waikiki, Island of Oahu, being more fully described in Royal Patent number 3441 to Alapai, containing 4 6-10 acres. The plainiffs claim that on the death of Alapai in 1853 or previous, probably in 1851, he left a daughter Nihoa. She died in 1859 or 1862, leaving a husband Kalauao who still survives, but no issue. At the time of Nihoa's death there survived Kaoho, who was sister to Nihoe. re survived Kaobe, who was sister to N on's mother (Nanipilali). This Kaobe wa on's mother (Nanipilali). This Kaobe was be wife of the well known Major M. Mahuka-he her death he married Luukia and this ouple had issue the plaintiff Mahukatillii. It is claimed that Kaobe inberited the estate (Nilhoa, and on Kaohe's death without and indred it passed to Mahuka her husband, ac-ording to the statute; and on Mahuka's death he estate descended to his son the plaintiff Ashed alidi, his widow Janukia heipe entitled Mahukaliilii, his widow Luukia being entitle dower therein.

The restimony substantiates the plaintiffs aims. The defendants defend by adverse meession. The land in dispute is a barrel occ of sandy land on the beach at Warkiki ot capable of producing any crop and having othing on it but a few coconnut trees and hav bushes.

A great deal of testimony, extremely conflicting on some points, was adduced. I find it established, in substance, that Alapai died in Koolan, not having lived on the land and the Royal Patent for it was taken out in 1856 by Kalacone. Kuhelelos and Kamecuni who were sisters and persons of some distinction assumed charge of this land and became in succession the wives of this Kalacone a man of some note. By the the testimony taken in succession the wives of this Kalaseone a man of some note. By the the testimony taken in 1866 in the Probate Court is re the estate of Alapai it appears that Kuheleloa's father was the brother of Alapai's grand-mother and Alapai would therefore be, as described by Kalauao, the "keiki" of Kuheleloa un. She was Alapai's grand-aunt, a relationship not capable, under recent adjudications, of inheriting the property of Alapai, but sufficient to account for Kameenu and Kuheleloa's assuming the ownership of the land.

Kalaucone had a house near this land where he lived and all that part of the country was Kalasone had a house near this land where be lived and all that part of the country was for many years unfenced. From time to time they had persons living on the land; Paos, says he lived there once and that Kalasone kept his cances there once he had his wives planted how bushes there. Ahiena says, he was put in charge of this land by Kuhelaloa ma, that he gathered the cocoanute and kept off intruders. Had a grass house on it where he lived and after it secuyed, it was rebuilt. By a conveyance dated July 6th, 1866, Kamakaumaka widow of Alapai and her husband Ua and Kalauna husband of Nihoa conveyed all their interest in this land to Kalasoneved. veyed all their interest in this land to Kalaco-no. Kalacone left this land to the defendant Hikaalani Hebron by Will dated 20th Dec., 1878, and the possession by Mr. Hebron ever

It is not claimed that Kuche, or Mahuka or either of the plaintiffs ever had possession of his land. Even Niboa who was the ur this land. Even Nihoa who was the undoubted heir was obliged to get permission from the man put in charge by Kuhelelos to take commuts from the land. Considering the nature of the land and the uses to which it could be put, I think adverse possession is as well shown as the return of the case admits.
The possession since 1856 was under a chain of title and A hiera ways that A land left the land title and Ahiena says that Alapai left the land by word of mouth to Kuheleloa.

Opinion of the Court by Judd, C. J.

This was an application for the proof of a last will, heard originally by Mr. Justice Austin. The will was by him catablished and admitted to probate and the contestants appealed to a jury at the last April Term and the jury snatamed the will.

The issue for the jury to decide was "whether or not the said Puhaikala did execute a will devising her property in Palama, Hotolulu, to Aushiwa her grand-daughter, the petitioner."

After the evidence for the petitioner was in, the contestants counsel moved for judgment on the ground that no case was made to ment on the ground that no case was made to

The Court further instructed the jury upon the matter of date, that "it was not necessary the partier of date, that 'n was not necessary to prove the date with accuracy or exactness; that dates rested uncertainty in the human memory; that a mistake of a few months or longer in the date would not be fatal to the will if it was substantially proved."
